

Type of Ulster Volunteers and Captain Craig, Active Leader

No one knew when Ulster would fly into civil war over home rule following the sensational incidents over the resignations of several prominent British army officers. Ulster Unionist volunteers continued their maneuvers, principally under the command of Captain James Craig. Captain Craig is shown here inspecting the volunteers in Belfast. The armed Orangemen before Captain Craig is typical of the Ulster volunteers.

Still Working

Those Anderson men who are working for the new hotel here said Friday that they had by no means given up hope of being successful and that there was still some chance of being able to raise the required sum. The Richmond men who proposed the affiliation to run it San Jose Anderson people will raise the remainder. Most of the present owners stated have submitted their plan and realize it will help their proposals.

One of the gentlemen interested in the deal discussed the matter with a reporter for The Intelligencer yesterday. He pointed out the fact that all over the country impressions concerning a town are formed by what the traveling men say, and he said that if the traveling men reported Anderson with one hotel only and it is sufficient to sake care of the business at all times, people abroad would think that Anderson was a "one-hotel" town, and not worthy of two. He pointed out that a number of conventions come to this city annually, when it is almost a dire necessity that more hotel facilities be had. This gentleman said that if Anderson people did not take up the present proposition they need never hope for another as good.

WILL RETAIN SOVEREIGNTY

Senate May Amend Canal Tolls
Repeal Bill Passed By the House

(By Associated Press) Washington, April 17.—Col. George Goethals has been summoned before the committee to testify on the economic feature of the Panama tolls exemption for coastwise vessels. He is expected to favor repeal.

The colonel was asked to testify at the request of Senator Simmons, but may not reach here before April 24, the day set for the closing of the hearing. In that event Senator Simmons will not ask for an extension of the hearing, but will either request that Colonel Goethals' testimony be incorporated in the record or presented on the floor of the senate.

Sentiment was said to be crystallizing in the committee today for an amendment to the Senate bill stipulating that the United States will give up no rights of sovereignty over the canal by the repeal of the exemption. Supporters of that view hope to win the president to that view.
